Tamayo and Anguiano

create plastic synergies and intel.ligible every representative her peculiar and personal perception of that which is female.

The woman as a center and a stage scary, strong and empowered. Resilience to strokes and abstract lines that draw feminities, some fragile, some goddesses, amazons, other referrals and other autonomies. Tamayo abstraction is synchronized perfectly at pictorial fusion and alegories artistics of Anguiano. The result is a set of images that reflect all we are, from the ancestral to the most modern and contemporary art.

PICTURE: OSCAR SANZ

MONTSERRAT ANGUIANO

Barcelona, 1982

She is an Afro-Catalan artist, active since 2015, who is expressed with various artistic disciplines such as visual and plastic performance, poetry and painting. It evolves to this day in an activist, feminist and anti-racist art. Her subject is the woman, the descendant African woman. The artist defends female empowerment through art, working and researching the imperatives of the black community, sometimes invisibilized.

She is currently preparing her first book of poems on sensuality and body femininity, fake love, tangible and imaginary. She works on mural painting in both public and private spaces and bodyart as a form of artistic expression, with the body being the perfect canvas for dynamizing what is static.

One of the traumatic themes was female genital mutilation in the area where she was born which is Ethiopia. But Bekelech has never experienced this, as she found a way out of this issue. She created a series of artworks to convey her emotions of FGM. Luckily, she never experienced this issue as she ran away from it at a very young age.
